COLD WAVE PREDICTED FOR OHIO ON SUNDAY

Mercury Expected to Drop to 24 degrees or Below—
Floods Threaten River Sections Of The State

Columbus, O., March 29.—Due to the heavy rainfall, ranging from one and one half to over two inches, throughout Ohio during the past twenty-four hours, flood stage exists at some points along the Scioto, Muskingum and Hocking rivers, United States Weatherman Alexander announced here today. These rivers it was stated are approaching flood stage at other places, also.

The Sandusky River is expected to reach flood stage tonight and Sunday. Cold weather tonight and a cold wave, expected tomorrow are expected to halt rising waters in central and southern Ohio, it was stated.

The Scioto River was reported having reached flood stage at Larue and Prospect. Along the Muskingum, flood stage at Zanesville. On the Hocking near flood stage was reported from Athens. Indications were that the lowlands at Athens would be flooded this afternoon.

Weatherman Alexander said all these rivers were expected to continue to rise during the next several hours, resulting in considerable flooding of lowlands and probably developing into a serious situation at a number of points. Light to moderate rains are anticipated over northern Ohio this afternoon and tonight, changing to snow along Lake Erie Sunday.

The cold wave schedule for central and southern Ohio is expected to lower the mercury to 24 degrees, or below.

SPLIT IN ENGLISH LABOR PARTY NOW NEAR IS BELIEF

London, March 29.—Premier Ramsay MacDonald's double victory in forestalling a strike of subway workers and effecting a provisional settlement of street railway and bus employees' strike has averted only temporarily a split in the labor party, it was believed today.

The present crisis has been ended but other labor troubles to come up in the immediate future. A lockout of shipyard workers has been ordered for April 1.

The coal miners have forced the laborite premier to promise to introduce in commons a minimum wage bill which may be so bitterly opposed as to cause the government's downfall.

Building trades employees are restless and are threatening to strike.

London millions breathed a sigh of relief today when it was announced that a provisional settlement of the street railway and bus strike had been reached. Normal traffic probably will resume tomorrow.

Street car and bus workers met at 6 o'clock to consider the terms of a provisional settlement. It was anticipated that they would be ratified.

COLUMBUS GOES ON FAST TIME SUNDAY

Columbus will officially change to Eastern time early Sunday morning. Eastern time early Sunday morning.

Columbus citizens will turn their clocks and watches ahead one hour before retiring Saturday night, in order to wake up in conformation with the new time schedule Sunday.

Columbus has been operating on "daylight saving" time for several years, and the hour lost in April was gained again in October. The change to Eastern time now is permanent, and the clocks will not be turned back in the fall.

As a result of the change in time, railroads running through Columbus are changing their time to conform with Columbus time.

DAUGHERTY MAY OPEN LAW OFFICE

Washington, March 29.—Some of ex-Attorney General Daugherty's close friends are predicting that he will open a law office in New York. They say he is assured of connections that will make it almost certain that he will establish himself there.

When he entered the cabinet he announced the severance of his professional connections at Columbus.

The attorney general left Washington so suddenly today that it was impossible to interrogate him as to his plans for the future.

WILLIS AND FESS TALK ON MATTER

Washington, March 29.—Only a few Ohio members of Congress would give expressions on Attorney General Daugherty's precipitate retirement from the cabinet. Senator Willis, who some time ago pronounced Daugherty "as clean as a hound's tooth," declined to make any comment on the latest developments.

Senator Fess said concerning Daugherty's resignation, "I cannot say I am surprised, since the situation has placed the justice department on the defensive at a time when its energies must be given to the numerous cases now before it growing out of the war."

Representative John L. Cable of Lima said, "I regret to see a resignation before the man had a chance to finish his battle."

Senator C. C. Dill, Democrat, of Washington state said, "It was an act of good government too long delayed."

Democrats Launch Move Directed At Mellon's Eligibility To Hold Office

Washington, March 29.—With two scalps dangling from their belt—those of Secretaries Denby and Daugherty—the senatorial tomahawks turned their attention today to "getting" still another member of President Coolidge's cabinet, Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon and developments as sensational those which featured the Denby and Daugherty cases were freely predicted by those who are gunning for the treasury head.

A resolution sponsored by Senator McKellar, Democrat of Tennessee, directing the judiciary committee to investigate Mellon's fitness and eligibility to hold office, slumbered on the table in the senate today. It will be called up on Monday and debated with all the savagery that has characterized similar debates in the hectic days of the last two months.

The resolution stands a good chance of passing. The Democrats with few exceptions, are opposed to Mellon and his policies. His persistent attacks upon their tax schedules, some of which they believe to have been unjustifiable has earned for him a fairly solid Democratic opposition.

The Republican-Insurgents who have denounced him on the floor as the spokesman of "the vested interests" and "the tool of Wall Street," are opposed to him on general principles. A combination of Democratic-Insurgent strength can control the senate anytime it is exerted, as amply demonstrated in a score of instances.

The judiciary committee which will make the investigation if the resolution passes, is fairly well divided between Mr. Mellon's friends and opponents. There are nine Republican and seven Democrats. Among the Democrats are such opponents of Mellon's policies as Senator Reed of Missouri, Senator Caraway of Arkansas, Senator Ashurst, of Arizona; Senator Stanley of Kentucky and Senator Walsh of Montana. And on the Republican side are Senator Norris, of Nebraska, an insurgent and frequent critic of Mellon.

Brandegee of Connecticut, is chairman.

The peg upon which the investigation is to be hung is a statute that dates back to revolutionary times, prohibiting the secretary of the treasury from engaging in "trade and commerce."

At the time of Mellon's entrance into the cabinet he was an officer and director in more than half a hundred other corporations and banks. He resigned his offices, but his "interests" remain according to his opponents. They will seek to show that he has been unable to divorce his private business from his government post.

In the background too, lurks the never-as-yet explained assertion of Gaston B. Means, that he once investigated Secretary Mellon at the instance of the late President Harding and "got him." Means gave this testimony as a witness against Daugherty. What he "got" on the secretary of the treasury he did not say and the committee did not pursue the inquiry.

The inference was, however, that it related to whiskey withdrawals. Mellon is the cabinet officer responsible for prohibition enforcement. He and his family were the principal stockholders of the Overholt Distillery Company, one of the largest in the country.

Republicans are indignant and alarmed. They charge well-defined political plot to the Democrats to pick off members of the cabinet singly one after another, after the manner of snipers in the war. After Mellon, they assert, will come Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, Secretary of Commerce Hoover and Secretary of War Weeks.

The Democrats are merely aiming to keep up a drum fire of attack and sensation that will run into the approaching campaign and provide ammunition for the June-to-November battle.

STONE AND RUGG ARE PROMINENTLY NAMED FOR POST

President Engaged Saturday in Still Hunt For New Man

Washington, March 29.—Confronted with a score of names and beset on all sides by boosters and detractors thereof, President Coolidge swept routine aside today and engaged in a still hunt for a man to fill the second break in the cabinet he inherited nine months ago from the late President Harding.

Foremost in the ranks of aspiring candidates to succeed Harry M. Daugherty as attorney general of the United States it was learned from White House sources, are two sons of Amherst, the president's alma mater—one from New York and one from Massachusetts.

Harlan Fiske Stone, until recently dean of the law school of Columbia University and Arthur P. Rugg, chief justice of the supreme court of Massachusetts, are the respective candidates. Stone is being urged on Mr. Coolidge as a particular happy choice. His friends are pointing out that from the standpoint of legal experience his dozen or more years at the head of a great university law school fit him preeminently for the post. Further, because of this connection, Stone cannot be accused of having been tied up with oil or big business in such a way as to make him a target for senatorial attack.

Another factor that boosters of Stone are not allowing to escape the president's attention is the political expediency of his appointment. New York, they assert is doubtful so far as the Republican party is concerned, and selection of Nicholas Murray Butler's associate might help politically.

Justice Rugg is said to be the president's personal choice. The bogy of renewing the cry that "Massachusetts is in the saddle," however, may frighten the president away from his old friend and associate.

Judge Wm. S. Kenyon, Iowa, who declined the navy portfolio recently is still another prospect. He has frankly admitted the attorney generalship is the only cabinet post he would care to take. Big business interests, however are set against him, and his "trust busting" reputation, and because of his leadership of the farm bloc in the senate.

Certain administration leaders in the senate have started a movement to get Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes to take a temporary "demotion," and pilot the department of justice clear of the storm. These senators are undertaking to show that such a transfer actually would be a great honor to Hughes, signifying as it would that he was the one man of unquestioned integrity and legal ability to whom the president could lean in time of stress.

Hughes, nevertheless, is said not to be "very keen" about such an arrangement, despite the argument that he has virtually cleaned up the nation's foreign affairs.

Others who have been mentioned include Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, who, it is said, would not be transferred. Senator George Wharton Pepper, of Pennsylvania and Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, who have indicated willingness to leave the senate, and Governor Alex Groesbeck, of Michigan, who already has conferred with the president, but who failed to get a cabinet offer.

WILSON ESTATE IS WORTH $250,000

Washington, March 29.—Woodrow Wilson, ex-president of the United States, left an estate valued at approximately $250,000, according to a petition for letters testamentary filed Friday by his widow, Mrs. Edith Bolling Wilson, who is administrator of the estate.

Wilson owned no real estate, the petition set forth, the estate being cash, securities and personal effects.

LET CLASSIFIEDS TELL THE WORLD

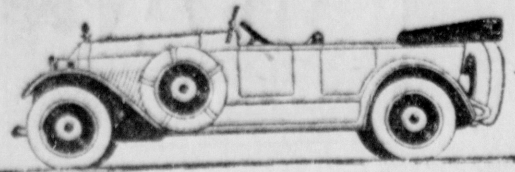

It's easy to go to a friend and say "I have a proposition I want to make you."

But when you want to make a proposition to everybody in Xenia who will be interested, do you know of any other way than to let The Gazette and The Republican spread the news?

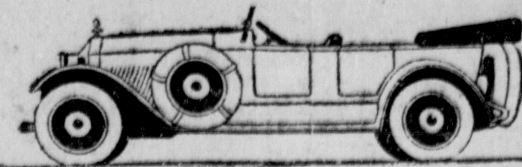

Mrs. Edward Cov. S. Detroit street, wanted to rent a six-room house.

She let The Gazette and The Republican tell Xenia about this proposition. Then all the interested people in Xenia either called personally or phoned her. She received a great many responses and within three days the house was rented.

Every day—The Gazette tells and sells.

TRACTORS IN USE BY HAGAR STRAW BOARD AND PAPER COMPANY EFFECT SAVINGS

Use of Fordson tractors by The Hagar Straw Board and Paper Company of Cedarville in increasing its plant capacity, is the subject of an illustrated page and one-half article appearing in Power and Haulage, a magazine issued in the interests of Ford trucks and Fordson tractors.

The article is styled, "Four Fordsons Displace 25 Mule Teams," and recounts how the company increased its capacity within the last year to the extent of twenty-five tons each twenty-four hours, through the addition of new paper machinery as well as new methods of time and labor saving that have cut manufacturing costs to a large degree.

The article says in part: "The Hagar Company uses about forty tons of straw each twenty-four hours in its process. This is placed in large rotary cookers and, with the aid of time, is cooked for six or eight hours under steam pressure. It is then dumped and passed through the beaters, where all impurities are washed out and the fibre remaining is beaten to a soft, clean pulp which is used in the paper machine. After beating, the pulp is pumped into the vats at the cylinder-end of the paper machine, passed over the cylinder onto the felt and then through sets of large rolls in order to squeeze the water from the pulp and form the sheet. From this state, the removal of remaining water is accomplished by passing the formed sheet of paper over a series of steam-heated rolls. Next it goes through friction calendar rolls that give it finish and firmness, ready for the winding and slitting and the capping of the rolls for shipping. These rolls, weighing as much as 1,000 to 1,200 pounds, are usually 30 inches in diameter and from 24 to 65 inches in length."

"Since the founding of the mill, the Hagar Straw Board and Paper Company has adhered to the practice of securing as much as possible of its straw requirements from the farms in the vicinity of Cedarville. At the present about half of the daily needs are so secured. Until the summer of 1923 it was customary to see the cavalcade of 20 or 25 mule teams that the company maintained, setting forth each morning at the sound of the whistle, their long ears wagging as they walked along drawing the wagons equipped with long hay ladders, boom poles rattling and feed boxes swinging at the sides. Each outfit carried the team's food and the driver's lunch and water jug. In the evening the caravan of great square loads of golden straw returned to the mill, and the teams were freed from their loads and turned over to the stable men waiting to groom them."

"But a mule team only travels

3½ miles per hour. It must be fed and cared for on Sabbaths and holidays and during shutdowns. For weeks at a time in winter when food is costly, it is not possible to haul loose straw, for roads are soft and wagon tires cut into farm lanes and fields or the mire in soft barn yards."

The article further describes that trucks had been tried without success, and that the experiment with the tractors was so successful that four tractors were put in use, each hauling two wagon loads of straw. Later a trailer was designed of steel frame and rubber tires with the regular hay ladder installed. Each is of two-ton capacity. Comparative cost figures produced show the mule teams cost $1,055 per ton-mile while the tractor and trailer operation costs $0.316 per ton mile. The haulage is also made faster and the hauling area increased.

SAY ENGINE IN WILLYS-KNIGHT IS SURE TO IMPROVE

Salesmen of the Greene County Hardware Company, who handle the Willys-Knight say it is actually and literally a fact—the Willys-Knight sleeve-valve engine improves with use. It is even smoother and quieter at fifteen thousand miles than when new.

Carbon only makes it better. There is no valve-grinding. Owners report 50,000 miles and more of uninterrupted service, without even so much as a tool touched to this engine!

This extraordinary performance is due to the very simplicity of the Willys-Knight engine. Instead of noisy, clattering cams and pushrods, and clicking springs, there are two simple metal sleeves which glide silently up and down between the cylinder wall and piston, one working with the other. Ports, or vents, in these sleeves register at intervals for the passage of intake and exhaust gases.

There are but 92 parts in this sleeve-valve mechanism as against 362 parts in the poppet-valve mechanism of the nearest car in size and price. With this simplicity the Willys-Knight engine simply defies the wear of time.

For all of its thrilling power and brilliant action, the Willys-Knight sleeve-valve engine never raises its voice above a whisper. The crooning quiet of the Knight, the keep-up-and-going spirit of this engine that makes Willys-Knight owners the proudest and most satisfied owners you can find.

This firm also handles the famous Studebaker line in all models.

MORE MONEY SPENT FOR REPAIRS THAN FOR NEW MACHINES

Henry Kirkland, Merchandising Director of Cumings Brothers, Flint, Michigan, talked to five hundred students of the Michigan State Automobile School, Detroit, recently, on the need of better business methods in service stations and garages everywhere.

To emphasize the opportunity for men who are really business men as well as high grade mechanics, he said, "Last year the selling price of all the new automobiles sold was $2,500,000,000 on which the dealers made a net profit of 3 per cent, or $75,000,000. But the selling price of parts used on repair jobs was $2,900,000, or $400,000,000 more than the price of the new cars, and the profit on these repair parts was 15 per cent, or $435,000,000. That is nearly six times as much profit on service as on new cars. And this is only on the parts used in repair jobs. It does not include the charges for labor, the profit on the time. When you add that, the money spent for repairs is seen to be many times greater than the money spent for new cars. The garage manager must be a real business man to handle this business right."

DURANT CONSIDERED ADVANCE IN BOYD DESIGN AT START

The Durant car at the time of its presentation to the public two years ago was considered a great advance in chassis and body design. It introduced mechanical features, refined appointments and equipment never before offered on a car of this price. This advantage of leadership has been maintained and increased from the beginning by added refinements of chassis construction and body development in accordance with W. C. Durant's policy of always giving the purchaser the utmost value for his money.

Durant Standard Models include a Touring Car, Sedan and Coupe. These offer a choice of attractive body colors with harmonious striping, top material and upholstery and either steel disc or wood artillery wheels. Radiator and headlamps are nickel plated on the touring car for added effect and left black on Sedan and Coupe in keeping with closed car refinement. There is aluminum beading between hood and cowl on all models.

Complete equipment includes drum-shaped headlights with dimmers and legal lenses; cowl, dash and tail lights; electric horn, with button on top of steering column; speedometer; ammeter and oil gauge on instrument board; gasoline gauge on tank at rear; demountable rims with extra rim and carrier; robe rail; Alemit system with pump; complete set of tools. BUICK POLICY TO GIVE MOTOR CAR VALUE SAYS AGENT

The public may rest assured that it will ever be Buick's policy to continue to give them the greatest motor car value at the very lowest price possible, in the opinion of J. B. Bice of the Xenia Garage.

Whenever the price of Buick cars advances it will be by reason of one of two things. Either conditions will be such as to make it absolutely impossible for Buick to continue to build its product or an increase will be due to the fact that Buick has incorporated in its product additional improvements and conveniences which by reason of their cost make it necessary to ask a higher price for the product.

This has been the policy that Buick has followed faithfully in its long successful history and it is the policy that it will follow in the future.

Motorists who purchased Buicks in the early days were quick to realize the manufacturing policy that lay behind the car. The actual service these owners received from their Buicks showed them that they were getting dollar for dollar value, and that the money they spent for the car was truly an investment in personal transportation. Because of this, hundreds of these first Buick owners replaced their earlier Buicks with new and improved models and thousands of other motorists joined them.

All of these motorists know today that Buick has maintained the standards of value that it set up in the beginning. They find value expressed in the every appearance of the Buick, in its beauty, and in its distinctive design. They realize the value that lies in the Buick's greater riding comfort, in the power of the Buick Valve-in-Head motor, and in the safety of Buick four-wheel brakes. Dependable, satisfying transportation over thousands of miles gives them final and convincing proof of Buick value.

Another Proof That Buicks Satisfy

Buick owners are always reluctant to part with their cars. For Buick's dependability, its ability to master every road condition, its sturdiness, its safety and comfort all firmly establish Buick in every owner's regard. Buick has made good cars for over twenty years and the latest Buick achievement is its greatest. Let us prove this to you by a demonstration in the Buick model you like the best.

SERVICE IS GIVEN BY LOW PRESSURE SPRINGFIELD TIRE

Mr. Kohl of the Xenia Vulcanizing Co. says that in all his experience in the tire business he knows of no tire that has given the actual service that the new Victor-Springfield under inflated cord tire does, and he has considerable trouble keeping it in stock.

This new tire not only gives the motorist ease in riding, but saves the car from the jolts usual in the old style tire. "The beauty of the Victor-Springfield cord tire," says Mr. Kohl is the fact that service calls are very seldom made, which is not only an advantage to us but to the motorist as well.

Mr. V. Franklin Tells How Cuticura Healed Pimples

"I was troubled with pimples and blackheads for about five months. The pimples were very hard, large and red, and festered and itched. They itched and burned after washing my face, and when I scratched them they would bleed."

"I tried different remedies but they failed to help me. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in about one week I got relief. I continued the treatment and after using four cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed."

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c and 30c.

PROPOSED MASONIC TEMPLE FOR XENIA GIVEN IMPETUS FRIDAY

The movement for the proposed new Masonic Temple here was given impetus at the meeting of the Masonic Club Friday night, when Ed. S. Foust, owner of the lot on South Detroit Street, chosen as the tentative site for the building, presented the lot to the Masons.

Simultaneously reports of the Masonic Temple Association as to the progress of the sale of stock in the building association showed that only $35,000 remains to be subscribed of the $115,000 set as the goal for the building. A whirlwind campaign to obtain the final amount before April 15, was inaugurated at the meeting.

The presentation of the building lot was made by A. E. Faulkner, treasurer of the Masonic Temple Association, on the behalf of Mr. Foust and was accepted by George Little, president of the Association. The lot is valued at $10,000 and equal to a subscription in that amount to the fund. In response to an appeal extended at the meeting, practically $5,000 more was subscribed, making an addition to the fund of practically $15,000 from the results of the meeting.

The meeting followed a dinner given by the Masonic Club, at which more than 200 Masons were present. A sing was held in the lodge room preceding the business meeting, which was in charge of Dr. A. C. Messenger. Following the announcement of the gift, an ovation of several minutes' duration was given the donor.

Plans and specifications for the proposed Temple, were drawn up sometime ago by a Hamilton architect, and approved by the Association and the Lodge. Following approval of the plans, the Association began its campaign for stock subscriptions, selling the stock at $100 a share. Members now believe that the whirlwind campaign to be inaugurated will fully finance the building project before April 15.

M. C. Smith was named chairman of the committee that will wind up the subscription campaign. Other members of the committee who will work with him in the drive are A. J. Taylor, the Rev. W. H. Tilford, Douglas Custis, Charles A. Bone, Dr. W. A. Galloway, Watt Frame, J. H. Whitmer, L. A. Wagner, B. U. Bell, O. M. Whittington, Clifford Spriggs, James Wilson 3rd., and Harold Fawcett.

Dr. Moses Breeze, Columbus, the speaker of the evening, aided in the campaign with his speech "The Building of the Temple," following his introduction by Dr. Messenger. He said the building of the temple is not only material but spiritual. "It is the building of the central thought of the institution in to the life of each one—namely God," he said.

"When was this lodge organized?" queried Dr. Breeze. He was told in 1818. "Over a hundred years old and you have no Temple? What is the matter with you folks? You ought to have a Temple. If you are building around and up to a great idea, you should have a worthy place to present such an idea."

Turning to his audience, Dr. Breeze, asked for a subscription that would match the gift of Mr. Foust. Failing in this he asked for smaller subscriptions to the capital stock, payable in two years. In a few minutes he had obtained $2,200 in capital stock subscriptions. Mr. Little then announced that it is now the time either to carry the building project forward or place the whole matter on the shelf. "If we can raise $2,500 more here tonight, the Temple is assured," he said. Dr. Breeze again took charge of the subscription campaign and when the subscriptions were totaled, it was found that $2,700 more had been subscribed to the fund.

A number of out of town Masons took stock in the project, and one visitor, not a Mason, subscribed $200. Members are now practically certain that the additional subscriptions necessary to carry the building project to completion, will be obtained within the prescribed time.

Singing by those present and several special numbers of the O. S. & S. O. Home Glee Club closed the meeting. The Harmony Kings Orchestra furnished music during the dinner and meeting.

MRS. YOUNG ENTHUSIASTIC

Cannot Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Enough. Sick Women Read This Letter

Charleston, S. C.—"I was completely run-down and not able to do my household work. I just dragged myself around and did not have energy enough to get up when I sat down. I read advertisements of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in your books and learned about it. I got benefit from the very first bottle. I continued to take it for some time, and now I am doing all my own work, even washing and ironing, and never felt better in my life. I tell all my friends that the change in my health is due to but one thing and that is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I cannot praise it enough."—Mrs. ANNIE YOUNG, 16 Amherst St., Charleston, S. C.

The reason for such a letter from Mrs. Young is apparent. She got well and is grateful. Recently a nation-wide canvass of women purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was made, and 98 out of 100 reported that they received benefit from taking it.

Just because the Vegetable Compound has been helping other women is a good reason why it should help you. For sale by druggists everywhere.

ARE WE TO BE DISAPPOINTED ABOUT THE WORK OF THE REPARATIONS EXPERTS?

It is fairly clear that the special reparations committees have a financially workable plan in hand. Weeks ago it was announced that there only remained the actual drafting. Then the machinery showed signs of halting and bucking. The gears began sand-grinding. Delays, unexplainable save on the assumption that somebody was holding out on grounds not of an economic nature, became the order of days and weeks. Politics.

The news that the British members of the experts' committees, together with Sir John Bradbury, British representative on the Reparation Commission itself, had left for London seems to confirm the already well-founded suspicion that it is the British Government, dominated, as usual, by the big-wigs of the Board of Trade, that is holding up the show.

When the French Government took the trouble virtually to accept in advance the conclusions of the experts on the economic phase of the matter there was large hope that the political factors would be allowed to rest. It was not to be.

It has been ever apparent, of course, that the reparations plan, when and as promulgated, would necessarily have to be cemented by a political agreement. It is neither desirable nor possible to evade this essential of the settlement. France has suffered through the German defalcation; she must have protection against a repetition. If France is to let go her hold on Germany, some other effective form of pressure must take its place. The ideal of a solid allied front must be sought that the security France has boldly taken may not be vainly sacrificed.

France, singly and in opposition to the desires of the other Powers, forced a showdown. France faced and weathered a diplomatic hurricane. She weathered the waterspouts raised by the financial witch-doctors to sink the franc. Now she asks her war allies to state whether they are for Germany or against Germany in the matter of indemnities.

The other nations will think twice before they give her the cold shoulder. A desperate France, forced to take steps more serious even than the Ruhr occupation, might well start the war sparks flying, and no man could tell where they would fall. That France should be driven to such an extremity is unthinkable.—Public Ledger.

"AS YOU LIKE IT"

March 25th, the hundred and third anniversary of Greek independence, Greece set up housekeeping as a republic. Of course, it takes more than a mere resolution by a National Assembly to establish a republic. But it also took more than merely waving the flag of revolt on that March day 103 years ago to establish Greek independence. Greece is today probably not fully prepared for the rigors of republican government; and it is well known that the majority of people are monarchists at heart. But it is also a question whether Greece a hundred and three years ago was prepared for independence; and there must have been, even in that day, many who preferred paying tribute to the Turkish Sultan. A skeptic might even wonder whether independence has been best for Greece and whether a republican government will be. Ratiocination however, plays a minor role in such matters; and if the world today is not stirred over the establishment of a Greek republic, it may well be that the world is older in republics—or that there is no Byron to poetize and dramatize the hodiernal Isles of Greece.—Public Ledger.

NOT THE TIME

The resolution written into the House Navy Appropriation Bill asking the President to call a conference for further reduction of the world's navies is being taken more seriously in Tokio and London than in Washington. Prim Minister MacDonald indicated in the House of Commons that he will make inquiries concerning it. There is what amounts to guarded approval in Japan, where Tokio officialdom welcomes it "in principle" and proceeds to attach numerous strings to that welcome.

In Washington it is taken for what it is, a generous gesture in the general direction of what many Americans hope to see some day. Neither the White House nor the State Department believe this an opportune time to urge further reductions. The atmosphere today is not as good as it was in 1921 when the Washington Conference met. Considering Europe as it is, not as we should like to see it, the Washington attitude has wisdom in it. Our own disarmament has gone fully as far as it will be safe to go until Europe comes out of the war fog, settles some of its aching issues and is more willing to listen to disarmament reasoning than it is today.

REST ONE YEAR IN SEVEN

A Sabbatical year for public school teachers is being considered by the larger of the organizations of teachers in the Philadelphia schools, namely, the Women Teachers' Organization; and judging from the care which has been exercised in the framing of the plan and the earnestness with which it is being pressed, the project is not likely to be allowed to be forgotten. As now drafted, the plan is to apply only to teachers of fifteen years' or more experience, and safeguards the standing and position of the absentees. It contemplates that not more than 2 per cent of the teaching force shall be allowed the sabbatical leave each year and they are to get half pay for the period of absence.

Just Folks

THE WEAKLING

I thought I heard the proud trees talking
As through a forest I went walking.
"Tis vain to preach," I heard one state,
"We cannot get him to grow straight.
He will not live like other trees,
But sways with every changing breeze.
Upon the fellows of his race
His conduct daily brings disgrace."

"Look at him there, another spoke;
Is that the way to be an oak?
See how his wasted form has shrunk,
He has no pride of leaf or trunk.
I'm sorry for his family
Which has to bear so poor a tree.
Why will he not grow strong and fine
And honor his ancestral line?"

I turned and saw a twisted form,
Beaten and tossed by every storm.
His friends had pitied him they knew
Upon his roots there was a stone
Which held him down and starved his frame
And bent him to a life of shame.
This was the poor tree's sorry fate

It could not, if it would, grow straight.
So with the race of men, thought I,
We scorn the weak, not knowing why.
We boast our family pride and name,
And turn him out who stoops to shame;
Yet it may be some heavy weight
Prevents his form from standing straight.
Here's something which the forest shows:
Not every oak to greatness grows.

"Now that I keep my house dust-free all the year round with a vacuum cleaner, need I do the old-fashioned 'Spring Housecleaning'?" writes a Bride Reader.
The vacuum-cleaned home does make it unnecessary to do the strenuous kind of annual housecleaning our grandmothers did; but, for the sake of sanitation, every woman of today likes to move her furniture and draperies out into the sunshine and air at least once a year.
The vacuum-cleaned home does make time carpet-beating unnecessary. And the vacuum cleaner attachments for removing dust from upholstery, draperies, etcetera, enable us to clean our hangings and furniture right in the house. But no machine can ever rival Nature's sun and air, in sweetening our possessions and ridding them of any germs that they may possible harbor.

Assuming, then, that we have kept the house clean all year, with the vacuum cleaner, our Spring Sunning and Airing is best conducted as follows:

Dust and wash all ornaments of china, brass, and other materials which do not require sunning, and put them away, temporarily, in a clean closet. Take all small cloth objects such as couch pillows, table runners, silk lampshades, etcetera, out into the open air, but take care that a strong sun does not fade them. Vacuum-clean small rugs and place them in the sunshine for a full day. Also carry out the movable pieces of furniture; the larger and heavier furniture cannot, of course, be taken out, but should, at least, be pushed close to a sunny window. The room is now free of all save the larger rug (if there is one). After cleaning this with the vacuum, remove it, too, to porch or back yard for a thorough sunning.

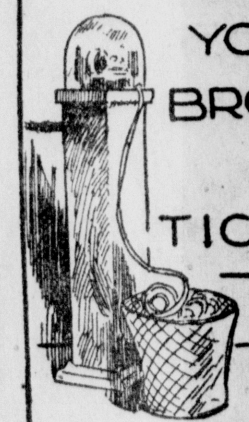

The housekeeper now has a chance to brush over the ceilings with a broom which is covered with a flannel bag (or, better yet, with a white wool mop) and rub down the walls. The wood of baseboard and window trim should be gone over with water or cleaning oils and polishes, after the windows have been washed. This is the time, too, to treat the floor if it needs it.

Start at the top of the house and clean downward, taking only one room a day—and allowing several days be-

MONEY AT WORK

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments

HAS YOUR BROKER A TICKER?

The New York Stock exchange does a great deal to prevent buckting by denying ticker service to firms which cannot prove that they are respectable and reliable.

Even a bucket shop must have quotations on stocks and bonds. No one will be fooled consistently by a concern which has no ticker service.

The New York Stock exchange has a committee which is continually checking up doubtful firms. If a firm's conduct is unbusinesslike, the ticker service is taken out.

If crooked brokers could easily obtain quotations, one of the greatest handicaps to buckting would be removed, and we would undoubtedly see a great spurt in the business of buckting.

Before buying stocks from a broker who claims to be a member of the New York Stock exchange, be sure he has a ticker.

QUART OF WATER CLEANS KIDNEYS

Take a Little Salts if Your Back Hurts, or Bladder Is Troubling You

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Eating too much rich food creates acids, which excite the kidneys. They become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood. Then we get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys, or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin drinking a quart of water each day also get about a half ounce of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, and in a few days your kidneys my act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush and stimulate the kidneys; also to help neutralize the acids in the system, so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby often avoiding serious kidney complications. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year. adv

BIT BY BIT

Big dreams realized! This is the process: Starting to do the small things that you are able to do better than they have been done before; rolled up sleeves; long hours, unusual patience—faith that the dreams will come true.

In other words, only bit by bit are any of us able to rise and demonstrate our ability to handle big things, which are the products of big dreams.

Hidden away alone at the task while the crowd plays, and all too often wastes, it takes real heroism to work on at little things while so many are at the job of completing big things.

But there is always a small beginning to every great ending. Bit by bit the large enterprise is unfolded.

I have been reading a great book of letters by one of the master minds of all history. A commentator has this to say about them: "The very tones of his voice are audible in them, his wit is here, his fine considerations, his friendships, naturalness, variety, sincerity."

There is only one path to perfection, and that is bit by bit.

Bit by bit is every great enterprise brought about. It's a long, long trail. And only those who have been schooled in the classroom of waiting and willingness to work and bide their time, are ever winners.

Bit by bit is the lesson taught and learned.

I read a short story the other evening—the work of an author whom I have been watching for many years. To me this last achievement seemed almost perfection. WALL OF WATER IS RUSHING DOWN ON MARYLAND ARE Hagerstown, Md., March 29.—A great wall of water is rushing down the Potomac river this afternoon. Already a half million dollars damage has been done. The entire Georges creek section is under water. Many residents at Piedmont, and Western Port have been forced to flee for their lives.

Wills Creek is overflowing, flooding many streets in Cumberland. Railroad service has been suspended entirely on the western Maryland system, west of here. Trains are marooned near Cumberland. No word has been received from the special train of shriners enroute from Cumberland to Baltimore.

MISSING GIRLS ARE NOW SAFE AT HOME

Helen Marie Connell, 12 daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pearl Connell, James town, and Cedarville pike, and Ina Davis, 14, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Davis, Xenia Avenue, Cedarville, were home again Saturday after disappearing from their homes Friday night.

The girls left their respective homes Friday evening presumably to go to a motion picture theater in Cedarville. They left the theater about 8:30 o'clock, and in the driving rain started out to walk to Clifton, where they arrived at 11:30 o'clock.

Their clothing soaking wet, they sought out the home of Mayor Preston and sought aid. He directed them to go to the home of Mrs. Jane Printz for shelter, but they evidently lost their way. Instead they stopped at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Herling, where they were taken in and given shelter.

In the meantime the worried parents notified Sheriff Morris Sharp and Chief of Police M. E. Graham of this city. At noon Saturday their parents were notified by telephone that the girls were in the village and they were found at the Reformed Presbyterian Church in Cedarville. They said they left Clifton at 8:30 o'clock Saturday morning and walked the entire distance to Cedarville.

Fears of the parents were allayed when they learned that they were well taken care of during the night.

BIG POWER FOR GOOD OR ILL IN SCIENCE - VIEW

London, March 29.—"The world today is playing with fire in its incessant search after scientific knowledge."

Sir Richard Gregory, famous British scientist and astronomer, uttered this warning against the increasing practice of "cheapening science" in an address to assembled scientists at Portsmouth, in the course of which he prophesied amazing advances in scientific knowledge in coming years.

"If ever man's vast knowledge of science is misused," continued Sir Richard, "it is quite within the bounds of possibility that he will disappear from the face of the world."

"We cannot prevent progress. But we can assist that it be accompanied by increased happiness. The attitude of civilized man toward new scientific knowledge at this epoch is that of a child playing with fire, and it is necessary now more than ever to teach him the danger of the element in his hands and to cultivate the desire to make the most noble use of the treasures which have been bestowed upon him."

"In all confidence I declare that the day is not far distant when science may place at the disposal of an army forces so strong that a hostile army or an enemy city may be annihilated by the touch of a button, for the age is coming when the motive power of the world will be the undisputed forces of the atom."

"Science has reason to believe that a cubic inch of this energy will contain enough motive power to propel the Atlantic liner in a dozen times."

"Suppose any nation had control of this tremendous energy," declared Sir Richard, "it might use it to impose its power upon other nations and not, for the benefit of the human race, that would be misuse of science and all wrong."

"That is what I mean when I say that scientific discovery may ultimately destroy civilization unless it is accompanied by the advance of ethical ideas to higher planes."

"It is for the democratic community to decide whether these powers shall be controlled for mastery or used for the rebuilding of the social organization."

Sir Richard contended that science was no more responsible for the horrors of the World War than it was for the soul-destroying social conditions introduced by the industrial revolution.

"Science has nothing directly to do with national conquest, with commercial exploitation or the upholding of the revealing of natural truth. Whether the rights of dynasties; its object is or not the world is any happier through these advances of discovery is not the responsibility of science," he added.

Monday, today examined the evidence in the case, and heard a plea that the oil magnate be indicted. The government's case was presented by Alton Pomeroy and Owen J. Roberts, the government's special oil counsel, and Peyton Gordon, district attorney.

Sinclair's attorneys declared today he would fight the case to the U. S. supreme court if an indictment is returned and the questioned of a senate committee's power thus determined for all time. They contended that it is "ridiculous and unlawful" for a senate committee to compel a witness to testify to matters which are already in the hands of the court.

Fair Warning to Muskrats.

Fur fashions will keep muskrat trappers busy again this season on the south Jersey marshes, as prevailing high prices for pelts will be an incentive for natives to set many trap lines when legal catches are permitted after November 15. The trapping season will be shortened by a month. Under the new game laws it will close on March 1. Meadow and marsh owners are making their leases to trappers at annual rentals that exceed the profits from the best of their field crops on high land. Several of the trappers clean up from $2,500 to $4,000 in the winter.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Greene Countians Who Have Achieved Distinction

(Editor's Note—This is number 34 of a series of articles concerning Greene County citizens and former citizens who have attained nationwide prominence in their chosen fields of endeavor. It is interesting to note that Greene County has furnished more than its share of people who have attained renown.)

THOMAS TAGGART

One of the most interesting people to ever call Greene County his home rose to prominence and position in this series of biographies in one of the most romantic careers ever told outside of story books.

He is Thomas Taggart, politician and millionaire hotel man of French Lick Springs, Indiana. The story of his life reads like a Horatio Alger yarn or a biography from one of the magazines that are devoted to describing how men have grown in small positions to business success.

Thomas Taggart was born in County Monaghan, Ireland, November 17, 1856, the son of Thomas and Martha Kingsbury Taggart, and came to Xenia, Ohio with his family in 1861, when he was only five years of age. Here he grew up and displayed the first indications of his ambitious make-up when he was employed at the depot restaurant at the Pennsylvania Railroad station here.

Leaving here in 1874, Mr. Taggart moved to Garrett, Indiana, and in 1877 he moved again to Indianapolis. There he became interested in the hotel business, and in a remarkable series of business successes, rose to the presidency of the Denison Hotel Company. He later developed the famous medicinal springs at French Lick, Indiana, acquiring possession of the property, erecting an exclusive summer resort and hotel and marketing the water.

He is president of the French Lick Hotel Company. He has been interested in Democratic politics since 1886, becoming a party power in his state as well as in national politics and at party conventions. He was elected auditor of Marion County, Indiana, in 1886 and re-elected in 1890. He was chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee from 1892 to 1894, and was district chairman of the seventh Congressional District many years.

Mr. Taggart was mayor of Indianapolis three terms, serving from 1895 to 1901 and from 1900 to 1916 was a member of the Democratic National Committee from Indiana. During that time he was national chairman from 1904 to 1908. He was appointed United States Senator from Indiana in 1916 to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Benjamin F. Shively.

Since then he has continued his active interest in national political affairs, and has served on numerous committees and boards of national prominence. He married Miss Eva D. Bryant, of Garrett, Indiana, June 16, 1877.

AN IMPROVED SUPER-HETERODYNE

A Modification And Improvement on the Super-Heterodyne
By CARLTON E. BUTLER, Radio Engineer.

IMPROVED SUPER-HETERODYNE CIRCUIT

WIRING DIAGRAM FOR IMPROVED SUPER-HETERODYNE

An improvement on the Super-heterodyne receiver has been developed by Mr. Robert E. Lacault, a prominent radio engineer and writer. He gives it the name of the Ultradyne.

In a search for a super-heterodyne receiver that would actually "deliver the goods," I tried out a total of five super-heterodyne receivers. In every case I actually built up each type, using transformers and circuits for that particular type of super-heterodyne.

Several of the circuits used nine and ten tubes. With nine tubes, using transformers manufactured expressly for the circuit, it was possible to bring in a number of stations within a distance of a thousand miles with fair volume.

Loop Used

On all of the five sets a twenty-nine inch square loop was used, shunted by a .001 M. F. variable condenser. The same batteries and tubes were used and the experiments were made in the same location in order to compare results obtained from each circuit.

Each receiver was built up with two stages of audio frequency with a loud speaker was used throughout in all tests. In order to give very receiver a fair show two weeks were spent on each receiver. Every possible experiment was made on each circuit by changing transformers, condensers, oscillator coils, etc., to see if better results could be obtained with each receiver.

If I was unable to secure satisfactory results in adjusting and tuning any circuit in two weeks' time it certainly was not suitable to present to less experienced radio fans than myself.

No Distance

I visited several experimenters who had built up the super-heterodyne type of receiver and who were having good results. In every case they confessed that several months of careful work was necessary to secure the right adjustment of the apparatus used so that results were satisfactory.

The coupling of the oscillator coil is extremely critical and requires a great deal of experimentation in the average super-heterodyne circuit.

The receiver shown in the diagram functioned when first assembled and equalled on si tubes without any amplification, any of the other types of super-heterodynes with two stages of audio frequency amplification. It also brought in distant stations on the loud speaker that it was impossible to hear on the other sets even when using headphones.

Not Hard to Construct

A passing glance at the picture diagram would give you the impression that the circuit is very difficult to construct and operate. In reality the reverse is true.

The wiring is fairly simple as the leads are all short with the exception of the filament leads which are shown at the rear of the picture diagram. Most of the connections consist of short wires from sockets to the transformers.

If you have had little experience in building radio receivers of any kind I would not advise you to attempt this one as your first. While no trouble should be experienced due to the fact that every piece of apparatus is plain marked and shown in position, if trouble should develop it may be rather hard for you to find the cause and remedy it.

The cost of the various parts to construct this receiver is over one hundred dollars and my only reason for presenting such a complicated receiver is to give the dyed-in-the-wool experimenter a chance to go the limit. Clip this article. Mr. Butler will present full constructional details and further information in later articles.

TO BROADCAST SERVICES

Walter Galloway, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Galloway, of South Detroit Street, who is attending the Edison Drafting School, at Schenectady, New York, has sent word that the Sunday morning and evening services of the State Street Presbyterian Church, of Schenectady, will be broadcast from Station WGY. The news is of large interest to local radio fans and a good program is looked forward to.

RADIO AUDIENCE TO HEAR RIP SAW

The radio audience throughout the world is just as demanding in their dial-turning for novelties, as is the audience in the theater and it has remained for George Stock, the Cincinnati master magician, to furnish the latest radio thrill from the Crosley broadcasting station WLW.

This new aerial wonder will be performed at eleven o'clock, Thursday night, April 10 and every radio fan will listen to the explanatory talk of the magician, and hear the saw cut through the barrel which will contain a young lady who has been securely tied with ropes that are held by a committee in the studio. When the barrel has been sawed into halves, the young lady is still found unharmed and securely tied as before the saw entered the wood.

Broadcasting Bill's Radiolays

By WILLIAM E. DOUGLASS

Since Chet's young son wuz born, he sez come over quick an' frum the bout three months ago or more he don't show up as often at the Cross Roads General Store. We miss him in the eve'nin' when the day's hard work is done no matter if he played all day re's be chuck full of fun. An' stories—say I wish that you could hear him tell that yarn about the time Jim Dudley caught the polecat in his barn. I've heard him tell that story fifty times or more I guess but he knows how to tell 'em so they keep their funniness. But lately things ain't goin' quite as peaceful an' serene as prior to the time the son appeared upon the scene. His new responsibilities has lined his forehead deep er mebbe it's been on account of losin' so much sleep. Excuse me, folks a minute while I see who's on the phone. I hope some of my neighbors have been left at home alone. I guessed it right, 'twuz Chet himself, he sez come over quick an' frum the way he acted some one must be awful sick.

"Twan't nothin' very serious, only Chet's wif wuzn't there havin' gone out for a little walk to get a breath of air. An' 'bout the time she left the house young Junior get awake an' Chet goes in an' picks him up, but that wuz a mistake. Then when Chet tried to put him down the kid would start to yell that's why he called me on the phone. That's all there is to tell. Except I got him quiet by a simple little trick. I used one time not long ago when our own kid wuz sick. You know Chet's got a Radio somewhat the same as mine. We slipped the earmuffs on his ears, an' say he liked it fine. While Chet an' I played checkers Junior listened wide awake. When his mother came in later all she sed wuz "Heavens Sake."—Copyright 1924. Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co

RESEARCH WORK IS BEGUN IN SHOE WORK AT ANTIOCH

Examination of the feet of 100 Antioch College co-eds began Friday as part of the research work to be carried on in preparation for the manufacture of shoes, which Antioch may sponsor.

President Arthur E. Morgan and B. J. Matthews, Boston shoe expert, plan to produce shoes in the proposed Antioch factory, that will be both sensible and beautiful. Psychiatrists are convinced that much nervous disorders is caused by shoes that are not properly fitted to the feet, it is said.

With the co-operation of New England shoe manufacturers it is planned to produce shoes that are orthopedically correct, at low prices and using only two different last styles. The idea is said to have the sanction of the Women's Foundation of New York, the Harvard Medical College and others.

Research work as to the needs of women's feet will be carried on in the leading colleges for women throughout the east. Attempts will be made to interest such men as "Golden Rule" Arthur Nash, Cincinnati; Ray Stannard Baker, Boston, biographer of Woodrow Wilson, and Winston Churchill, American writer. Matthews, who conceived the plan, became interested in Antioch, after hearing President Morgan speak before the University Club in New York several months ago. Together they visited Ray Stannard Baker, who evinced interest in the Antioch plan.

FARM PROGRESS

WILL REPRESENT GREENE COUNTY AT COLUMBUS MEETING

Mrs. W. M. Hardman, of Yellow Springs will represent Greene County, at a committee meeting of about twenty representative farm men and women, from as many different parts of the state, who will meet in Columbus, Monday and Tuesday, March 31 and April 1, to approve a rural program for Ohio. The work was to begin a few weeks ago during Farmers' Week, at Columbus, which Mrs. Hardman attended.

Upwards of 500 Ohio farmers and farmwives took part in the Farmers' Week conferences on the building of Ohio's rural program. At that time, considering the past, the present, and the future of Ohio agriculture, they made the start toward shaping a state agricultural program.

About 100 poultrymen, for example, met with poultry specialists and definitely declared for a program that would stress, in this order, feeding, housing, breeding, brooding and rearing, marketing, and diseases. Ohioans interested in farm engineering assured engineering specialists during Farmers' Week that the care, repair, and operation of farm machinery interested them more than drainage and building. So with other departments.

Since that time, the several departments have set down in black and white the programs suggested by the Farmers' Week conferences. Farm men and women in this smaller committee meeting in Columbus next week will consider these departmental programs, revise them as they see fit, and out of the parts build a unified rural program for Ohio.

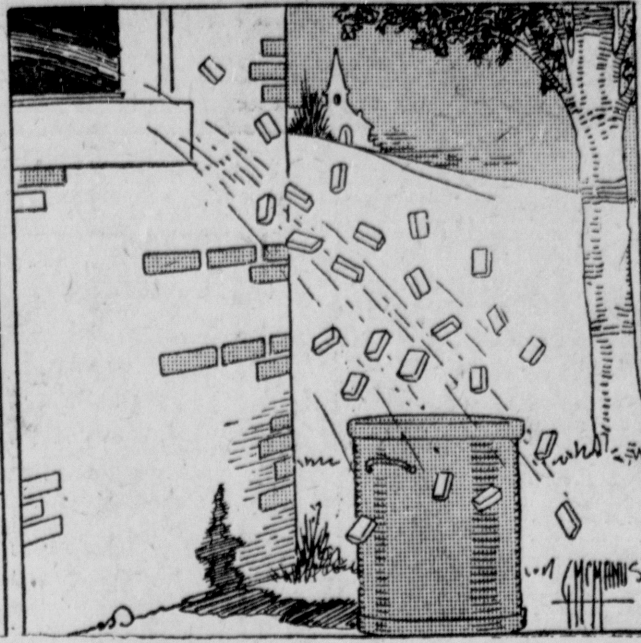

Invitation to this committee meeting has been issued by Alfred Vivian, dean of the College of Agriculture. He will preside at the committee sessions, which begin Monday at 1 o'clock and end Tuesday noon.

WOULD REDUCE POPULATION

Columbus, O., March 29—With a view of reducing the population in the penitentiary idle house, State Welfare Director Harper is on record today as favoring construction of a new paint shop at the big state prison. Harper, also, has suggested that prisoners be used in building a sleeping porch, mopping floors, cleaning windows, and that others be put to work at the state stone quarry and in making mattresses for state institutions.

BRINGING UP FATHER

The Evil Shepherd

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

Punctual to his appointment that afternoon, the man who had sought an interview with Francis was shown into the latter's study in Clarges street.

He wore an overcoat over his livery, and directly he entered the room Francis was struck by his intense pallor. He had been trying feverishly to assure himself that all that the man required was the usual sort of help, or assistance into a hospital. Yet there was something furtive in his visitor's manner, something which suggested the bearer of a guilty secret.

"Please tell me what you want as quickly as you can," Francis begged. "I am due to start down into the country in a few minutes."

"I won't keep you long, sir," the man replied. "The matter is rather a serious one."

"Are you ill?"

"Yes, sir."

"You had better sit down."

The man relapsed gratefully into a chair.

"I'll leave out everything that doesn't count, sir," he said. "I'll be as brief as I can. I want you to go back to the night I waited upon you at dinner—the night Mr. Oliver Hilditch was found dead. You gave evidence. The jury brought in 'suicide.' It wasn't suicide at all, sir. Mr. Hilditch was murdered."

The sense of horror against which he had been struggling during the last few hours, crept once more through the whole being of the man who listened. He was face to face once more with that terrible issue. Had he perjured himself in vain? Was the whole structure of his dreams about to collapse, to fall about his ears?

"By whom?" he faltered.

"By Sir Timothy Brast, sir."

Francis, who had been standing with his hand upon the table, felt suddenly inclined to laugh. Facile though his brain was, the change of issues was too tremendous for him to readily assimilate it. He picked up a cigarette from an open box, with shaking fingers, lit it, and threw himself into an easy-chair. He was all the time quite unconscious of what he was doing.

"Sir Timothy Brast?" he repeated.

"Yes, sir," the man reiterated. "I wish to tell you the whole story."

"I am listening," Francis assured him.

That evening before dinner, Sir Timothy Brast called to see Mr. Hilditch, and a very stormy interview took place. I do not know the rights of that, sir. I only know that there was a fierce quarrel. Mrs. Hilditch came in and Sir Timothy left the house. His last words to Mr. Hilditch were, 'You will hear from me again.' As you know, sir—I mean as you remember, if you followed the evidence—all the servants slept at the back of the house. I slept in the butler's room downstairs, next to the plate pan-

try. I was awake when you left, sitting in my easy-chair, reading. Ten minutes after you had left, there was a sound at the front door as though someone had knocked with their knuckles. I got up to open it, but Mr. Hilditch was before me. He admitted Sir Timothy. They went back into the library together. It struck me that Mr. Hilditch had had a great deal to drink, and there was a queer look on Sir Timothy's face that I didn't understand. I stepped into the little room which communicates with the library by folding doors. There was a chink already between the two. I got a knife from the pantry and widened it until I could see through. I heard very little of the conversation, but there was no quarrel. Mr. Hilditch took up the weapon which you know about, sat in a chair and held it to his heart. I heard him say something like this: 'This ought to appeal to you, Sir Timothy. You're a specialist in this sort of thing. One little touch, and there you are.' Mr. Hilditch said something about putting it away. My master turned to Sir Timothy and said something in a low tone. Suddenly Sir Timothy leaned over. He caught hold of Mr. Hilditch's hand which held the hilt of the dagger, and—and—well, he just drove it in, sir. Then he stood away. Mrs. Hilditch sprang up and would have screamed, but Sir Timothy placed his hand over her mouth. In a moment I heard her say, 'What have you done?' Sir Timothy looked at Mr. Hilditch quite calmly. 'I have ridged the world of a verminous creature,' he said. My knees began to shake. My nerves were always bad. I crept back into my room, took off my clothes and got into bed. I had just put the light out when they called for me."

Francis was himself again. There was an immense relief, a joy in his heart. He had never for a single moment blamed Margaret, but he had never for a single moment forgotten. It was a closed chapter, but the stain was on its pages. It was wonderful to tear it out and scatter the fragments. "I remember you at the inquest," he said. "Your name is John Walter."

"Yes, sir."

"Your evidence was very different."

"Yes, sir."

"You kept all this to yourself."

"I did, sir. I thought it best."

"Tell me what has happened since?"

"The man looked down at the table."

"I have always been a poor man, sir," he said. "I have had bad luck whenever I made a try to start anything. I thought there seemed a chance for me here. I went to Sir Timothy and I told him everything."

"Well?"

"Sir Timothy never turned a hair, sir. When I had finished he was very short with me, almost curt. 'You have behaved like a man of sense, Walter,' he said. 'How much?' I hesitated for some time. Then I could see he was getting impatient. I doubled what I had thought of first. 'A thousand pounds, sir,' I said. Sir Timothy he went to a safe in the wall and he counted out a thousand pounds in notes, there and then. He brought them over to me. 'Walter,' he said, 'there is your thousand pounds. For that sum I understand you promise to keep what you saw to yourself?'

"Yes, sir," I agreed. "Take it, then," he said, 'but I want you to understand this: There have been many attempts, but no one yet has ever succeeded in blackmailing me. No one ever will. I give you this thousand pounds willingly. It is what you have asked for.'

Never let me see your face again. If you come to me starving, it will be useless. I shall not part with another penny."
